Director's Message

The Covid-19 epidemic and following lockdowns in 2020 and 2021 have altered people's life in every way – whether it's the thought of going out shopping, meeting new people, going to the gym, or even going to work. People are now restricted to their houses for the most of the day, unless it is absolutely necessary, and working from home has become the standard.

People have begun redesigning and reusing their living quarters in order to make them worth their time in such a situation. While doing so, buyers have discovered that space-saving furniture that can be used for two or three purposes or can be folded and stored in compact shapes is the current trend.

India is no stranger to the concept of space-saving furniture. For a long time, Indian customers have been accustomed to utilising foldable tables and chairs, stackable seats, and sofa-beds. Organized players have just lately joined the area and are now giving unique solutions in the space-saving furniture segment.

Even though the space-saving furniture segment is expected to see a steady increase in demand over the next few years, followed by a sharp increase after the country and the world recover from the negative effects of Covid-19, the category faces challenges.

Design House India faced its own set of obstacles, but the company persevered by innovating to stay viable in the market throughout the epidemic.

In essence, we believe that within this decade, space-saving furniture would become the standard in Indian city residences.

7 Interior Design Trends to Watch in 2022!

In the realm of interior design, things have been tumultuous. From pre-pandemic easy-breezy colour palettes for relaxing, to luxurious décor and dazzling flourishes for entertaining at home...

Who knows what a new dawn may bring with the unexpected demand for so many of us to work from home, with home office space as the focal point of our desire?

With a community of more than 65 million homeowners and home design lovers, as well as more than 2.7 million renovation and design experts, home renovation and design platform Design House India provides unique insights into how people are decorating their homes in 2022.

They offer seven essential home design & renovation trends, as well as their furnishing prediction, to assist you in expanding your space...

Enhanced outdoor spaces & features

We've been taking the indoors out for a while now, and introducing shade structures like awnings is one of the greatest ways to do it from a functional standpoint." As we approach 2022, we see more individuals making preparations for this, as outside improvements remain a top priority. Aesthetically pleasant shade structures, such as awnings, not only give comfortable sun protection, but also assist to connect and beautify an outdoor space.

Texture all around

The major trend we see for 2022 is texture." Say goodbye to drywall with a flat finish and welcome to a surface you'll want to run your hands over or interact with tactile. With the introduction of materials and procedures that make undertaking home improvements and updates more reachable from a cost and skill standpoint, faux finishing has erupted into the market recently. When you utilise applied materials to imitate installed materials, this is known as faux finishing. Making a fake brick wall is a common use of this method, and if done well, it's difficult to tell the difference. To replicate the effect of Venetian plaster or to resemble concrete or marble, homeowners frequently use a fake finish.

The Home Office trend isn't going anywhere

This is the future of work, whether it's at home, at the office, or on the road. Home offices are here to stay, and they're just as crucial as the real office space you use. It's the one extra space that everyone wants, and they want it styled to represent their unique ideals. Customizable furniture has proven quite beneficial in this context.

Redefining Workplaces

Workers are returning to their customary workplaces as the epidemic is brought under control thanks to the global distribution of vaccinations. Workplaces are shifting to include more hospitality-based aspects, as well as more home comforts, in order to maintain employee engagement and happiness. This is to aid staff in their adjustment as they become accustomed to the new pandemic environment. Following the outbreak, there is a broad sense of worry and uncertainty across the world. Companies are recognising the need to improve and elevate the working environment in order to assist their workers' well being and mental health.

Spaces that are adaptable

The figures show that in the previous year, the majority of employees worked from home. With more remote employees returning to the office, it's clear that the office will soon become a centre. It will serve as a support for this new home office reality, as well as a location for all of these remote and non-remote workers to return to at various times during the day. A pleasant and adaptable work environment that moves away from previous strict arrangements. Getting this balance right will need creative design planning and strategy.

Biophilic Design is the rage these days.

The desire for a soothing, therapeutic, and relaxing setting is a current design trend. To satisfy our fundamental urge for connection with nature, biophilic design combines natural components with design aspects such as natural light and plants.

Trends in Color

Blood stone Reds: This season, you'll see a lot of deep reds. With the addition of blood stone to the mix, this stunning colour will become even more vivid. It's expected to be a long-term trend, and there should be plenty of it because it'll be here for a long time.

Continue reading to learn how to design for less!

Get Rid of Everything That Isn't Necessary

Let's face it: clutter is never appealing, and it certainly doesn't help your house. To get a great design in your house, start by getting rid of everything you don't need. Having less stuff will make it easier to keep everything properly in your available area, in addition to clearing your home and thoughts. This may be a significant effort, especially if you haven't done a serious cleanse in a long time, and it might feel overwhelming. But don't get disheartened; start with one little drawer and work your way around the house one room at a time. When you first start, you'll feel free, and you'll be eager to continue!

Get Crafty

Many times, you may believe you no longer enjoy an item, but a DIY afternoon might be all it takes to give it a whole new appearance and make you fall in love with it all over again. Without even considering the sense of accomplishment that comes from completing the task oneself! Crafted objects are also wonderful conversation starters and will allow you to stamp your personality and taste on your house.

Hire Affordable Interior Design Services (Design House India Private Limited)

Interior design is now more accessible and economical than it has ever been. Instead of hourly services, several low-cost interior design companies now offer flat-rate packages. Before committing to a design or furniture and décor purchases, clients may completely envisage their new interiors using 3D realistic representations.

Think Outside The Box

Practical challenges are frequently solved via creativity. When it comes to home décor, it helps you to see things in a different way. If you allow your imagination go wild, you'll discover that you don't have to limit yourself to using a product for its intended purpose. Here are a few ideas to go beyond the box when it comes to house decor. Do you need a new brass towel bar but can't seem to find one? A drawer pull is considerably simpler to come by and will suffice. Do you need some new flower vases? Mason jars might come in handy in a need. Do you need more storage but your bathroom is too tiny to accommodate it? Why not just lean a ladder against a wall?

First, decide on your style and colour scheme

The sensation of coherence throughout the rooms is the most important aspect of a beautiful house. It demonstrates that you've given some thought to the overall décor of the area, and it's a certain method to get a high-end look. So, before you move any farther, decide on a course of action. Examine many interior design styles and select the one (or a combination of them) that you prefer. Make a new Pinterest board and start collecting images of rooms and things you like. Then choose a colour palette that you will enjoy and won't get tired of. To put it another way, you must pick how you want your property to seem. This may seem self-evident, but thinking it through and collecting examples will provide you with a visual reference and aid in your decision-making.

Interior Design Updates That Are Simple and Inexpensive

As the proverb goes, "little things make a big difference". This is absolutely correct, and it is also one of the greatest home design suggestions! Changing the knobs on your kitchen cabinets, for example, may transform the entire area from ordinary to "wow!" Changing the knobs on your doors to something that matches your style is another little alteration that will improve the appearance of your house. These may seem insignificant at first, but we guarantee that if you adopt just one or two of them, your home will immediately improve!

Opt Pattern and texture

The use of patterns and textures in your low-cost home design arsenal is essential. For starters, they provide depth to a surface, so they'll help you update your existing furnishings (think of the difference it makes to put new cushions on a sofa). But that's not all they're capable of. Patterns and textures have the ability to create a mood in a room.

Lighting is very Important

Poor lighting may destroy even the most beautiful home... Don't make it your home! It makes no difference whether the interior design is high-end or low-cost. When it comes to lighting, the best advice is to layer. This will allow you to utilise the area in a variety of ways.

So there you have it: 8 easy and cost-effective interior design ideas to help you construct the home of your dreams on a shoestring budget!

How Can You Save Money By Hiring An Interior Designer?

There is no greater investment than hiring a professional interior designer if you want a house created to respond to every minute part of what makes you comfortable, what you find attractive, and what allows you and your family members to perform at full potential. Why?

Because experienced interior designers have a natural born capacity to perceive in 3D, in their mind's eye, in size and proportion, which very few other people have.

If you hire the right interior designer for your personality and are honest with them about your budget from the start, and give them free reign to create based on your functional needs and all the details you've discussed and agreed to ahead of time, and if you respect their ability to carry that forward and don't micromanage them, you'll end up with a home that will be remembered forever, by you, your family, and your friends.

Interior designers are experts in every aspect of the business of design, as well as project management, and this body of knowledge is hard to acquire without years of experience.

Having access to a professional interior designer's project management and resource understanding skills saves you money and ensures that your investment delivers a house that operates and thrills you and your family in every way imaginable in the shortest period of time feasible.

So, whether you've tried it yourself and failed, or you're trying to *save money* by doing it yourself, there's no substitute for hiring a professional interior designer and sharing your vision with them, then empowering them to make it sparkle brighter than you could ever imagine through the lens of their knowledge, experience, and artistic eye.
